The Judgemental Flower (Building Relationships)

Synopsis

The flower patch has always been the same. Purples hang with other Purples. Blues hang with Blues. Talls hang with Talls. Shorts hang with Shorts. But when Purple moves into the Blue Patch, Blue just isn't sure how he feels about that! Fortunately, Blue's Mom is around to point out how much Blue and his friends can learn from the wind, the rain, and the bees, who treat all flowers the same. Will Blue start to see things from a different lens? Find out in award-winning author Julia Cook's timely and important tale teaching the skill of valuing the differences of others.

Julia Cook, a former school counselor and teacher, writes books for children that are entertaining and teach important social and behavior skills. She has authored dozens of books including the popular "I Just Don't Like the Sound of No!" and "But It's Not My Fault!"

Good book but felt the language was a little harsh on a few pages so I change it when ready to my 5yr old. She enjoys the book though

Love this unique approach to the "ism's"

love the questions this book inspires

My students really enjoy this book and activities we do with it. The students refer back to this book when we discuss various topics of character.

Cute book as usual by Julia Cook. This book has such a great and kid friendly way to discuss judgment and how it can affect others. This is another great addition to my School Counselor library. I plan to get all of the Julia Cook collection.

My students loved this story and the wonder facial differences illustrated on each flower. It definitely represents the differences we see in people today.

Thank you Julia Cook for writing this book! This book sparked great conversations about prejudice and respecting differences. My students LOVED this book!

Great for my 5th grade class!
