Founded in 1915 as the Cartographic Group, the first division of National Geographic, National Geographic Maps has been responsible for illustrating the world around us through the art and science of mapmaking. Today, National Geographic Maps continues this mission by creating the world's best wall maps, recreation maps, atlases, and globes which inspire people to care about and explore their world.

I give this map 3 stars because it is a good map for road travel around Botswana, but lacks enough detail to get around in the bush. The material it's made of is high quality and I'm sure it would hold up well with repeated use, but there are no inserts with expanded views for any of the national parks or areas of interest. If you are traveling around Botswana and mostly sticking to the roads, this map will do you just fine, but if you are heading off into the bush, don't rely on this to be detailed or accurate enough for you to not get lost.

Huge map that details the more adventurous items you would want to see instead of an exhaustive road atlas. If you are looking for a map that has every road, path and stop sign marked this is NOT it. If you want one that shows the camps/stops/interesting things to see THIS IS it!

Waterproof, rugged and with details that one would expect from National Geographic. One side is Northern Botswana, the other side is South Botswana. The photo insets are unnecessary and would have liked to see more of the mapped area taken up by the photos.

I liked the way the map was designed; however, looking at it from an overall point of view, it appears to be well overdue for an update. Quite a bit of the information I was seeking has not been included, such as contemporary roads and points of interest. Willie Y
