Customer Reviews

These four romantic novellas focus on women who find their true loves at Christmastime. Palmer's Angel in the Attic tells of Fara Canaday, a wealthy heiress who is certain that every man who courts her is after her money until she finds a wounded (Christian) man in the snow. Dianna Crawford's A Daddy for Christmas has lighthouse keeper Tess Winslow taking in sea captain Lovett Keegan after his boat is capsized in a storm. Peggy Stoks's Tea for Marie concerns the confusion Marie Biggs feels, searching for Christian values, when she must choose between two suitors. In the final story, Kathie Chute's Going Home, Charles Foster Devereaux returns home to his plantation in Louisiana and falls in love with the strongly Christian daughter of the new owners. All four stories are entertaining, with believable and often witty characterizations. A fine choice for Christmastime reading that includes a recipe from each author. So enjoyed this book by Catherine Palmer, saving it to reread this winter ;)

Friend loves it

I love reading these books. They are an inspiration, especially when you are having some days that are hard to deal with.

I bought this book as a fan of all things "Victorian" and thoroughly enjoyed the stories. This is Christian romance writing at its best - the gospel message is there, along with a believable romantic story. Recommended for anyone who likes to curl up with a good book on a winter evening.

I bought this book as a gift for my mother because I had read it and let her borrow my copy and she loved it and wanted a copy of her own.

We were looking for stories by Dianna Crawford. We are very pleased with the book and have enjoyed reading it.

The stories were beautifully written. However they should have been much longer. It seems to me that all stories started out nicely but ended in a hurry.

This book is perfect for the Holidays. I now plan to read the book every year. I am presently reading the story of the Christmas Cottage and the quilt series is next on my list! Nothing better to warm ones heart than romance at Christmas time! You'll love it! And the recipes at the end of every story are a Perfect ending!
