Join Joe Oesterle on a fun-filled artistic journey as he teaches you to draw more than 100 cartoon character faces and expressions. You'll learn about the tools and materials you need to get started. Then you'll discover techniques for constructing basic head shapes and facial features, as well as how to convey a range of character expressions. Joe also shares tips for combining emotions, naming characters, and creating gags for a lively and enjoyable adventure in cartoon drawing!

Joe Oesterle is an award-winning writer and illustrator, but what he often fails to mention is that many of those awards were won on a New Jersey boardwalk, shooting a water pistol into the mouth of a plastic clown in an effort to be the first to pop the balloon. He has worked as the Art Director of the Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtle apparel division, and performed double duty as Art Directed as well as Senior Editor at the National Lampoon. His work has appeared in television, radio, books, (including "Weird Hollywood" and "Weird California") magazines, and web sites. Among his many impressive professional achievements Joe is especially proud of the fact that a humorous animated short he wrote, directed, and voiced has been on display at the Smithsonian Institution since 2001. Bought this for my son, and he loves it! It even has some humorous comments by the author. Fun and entertaining.

Excellent Book. My daughter loved the different faces and was able to learn many different ways to draw faces. Excellent find.

Thank you!
