Customer Reviews

An essential reference for pediatric advanced life support --Pediatric Review

Cheap , knock off, NOT Broselow as advertised, Paper, not laminated, who ever cut it, cut it unevenly through the numbers, save your money and search for the real Broselow which is trade marked, they should probable remove that name from the selling title.....

These are not authentic Broselow Tapes! They are poorly printed, poorly cut strips of paper. They are just paper, not laminated. They won't be reusable. The printing is as if they needed to change their printer ink. The red and pink were the same color. The orange on one side was orange but pinkish on the other. I'm returning these.

This is fine if you are only using it to teach classes. It is NOT laminated so it will only hold up to a one time use. I was very disappointed and won't buy again. (PS it has the name Broselow on it)

This is not an official Broselow Tape. This is a modified, made-at-home looking generic tape. To the credit of the product it doesn't state that it's the real-deal, but I didn't expect to get what I did. The strip I got is printed on what feels like printer paper, and will not hold up during any type of resuscitation attempt.

This is a fake Broselow tape. Although it contains SOME of the information of the original, and it also has the color-coded length measurements and corresponding doses of meds, it is just printed on plain paper (not laminated like the original) so it's probably only good for a couple of uses before it starts to tear. I haven't started using it as I had also bought the original Broselow tape instead.

This item was a gift and she went crazy about it. she loved it , thank you

The material is low quality. The price is too much for a very thin paper.

Junk paper. Useless as it rips or ruined with body fluids. I bought the thin colored tape instead and have a separate list of dosing.
